BENEFITS OF REGULAR STRENGTH TRAINING.

Strength training is not just about bodybuilders lifting weights in a gym. It's about conditioning and building muscle that could benefit your heart, improve your balance, strengthen your bones and help you lose weight. It can benefit people of all ages, men and women alike, and particularly people with health issues.

Many people are aware that regular exercise is necessary to stay healthy and many individuals choose cardio/aerobic activity over resistance training. However, recent research has shown that splitting cardio/aerobic and strength training is most beneficial for your health.

According to the American College of Sports Medicine, adults should aim to do muscle-strengthening activities, such as weight lifting at least two times a week. It is extremely important for women to engage in because they are more likely to develop problems with their bones and joints as they age.

- Helps keep the weight off and shapes your physique
- Increased metabolism and improve circulation
- Protects bone health and muscle mass
- Helps develop better body mechanics
- Plays a role in disease prevention
- Boosts energy levels and improves your mood
- Lower stress

Before beginning a new exercise routine, speak to a medical professional to ensure you are healthy enough for any physical activities.

The Surgeon General and the President's Council of Physical Fitness & Sports stated that everyone, young and old, should get thirty minutes of moderate physical activity most days of the week.
