dietary food for intense muscular effort for athletes.

CHF 39.90

L-Arginine is a conditionally essential amino acid, which means that under normal circumstances it can be produced by the body to meet its needs. In the case of poor diet or heavy exercise, our biosynthetic pathway cannot produce sufficient amounts of arginine and therefore some must be obtained through diet or supplements. It is the only precursor of nitric oxide (NO) and an important precursor of creatine, as well as arginine supplements are generally popular among athletes and bodybuilders. Taking high-dose capsules is the easiest way to meet the increased demand of arginine.
