The new VEGAN PROTEIN from ALL STARS is 100% plant-based and therefore a lactose-free protein powder. It is made from 100% genetically unmodified ingredients, is gluten-free, soy-free, enriched with the fiber inulin and vitamins B12 and D3. The taste is provided by natural flavors.

What protein types does VEGAN PROTEIN consist of?

The protein portion of the plant protein powder consists of pea protein (as isolate), rice protein (as concentrate), almond protein and hemp protein. The 30g serving of powder, mixed with 300ml of water, contains a whopping 60% protein at about 18g. Due to the mixture of different types of protein, each serving contains a comprehensive amino acid profile. (See the label for more details). Since no wheat, oats or other grains were used as protein suppliers, the powder is gluten-free.

What additional substances are contained in VEGAN PROTEIN from ALL STARS?

In addition to natural colorings and flavorings, the chocolate-almond flavor contains cocoa. The powder is sweetened with sucralose. Inulin is added to increase the fiber content. As well as the vitamins cholecalciferol (D3) and cyanocobalamin (B12), which are important for a plant-based diet.

Why a vegan protein?

There can be several reasons for using a vegan protein. Many athletes use it specifically for lactose intolerance or difficulty tolerating classic protein shakes made from milk protein. It can be used in a very strictly designed vegetarian diet, as well as in a vegan diet, in which all animal components in the diet are omitted. Also in a weight-reduced diet, the VEGAN PROTEIN can provide good services, since it provides mixed with water only about 120kcal and contains significantly less than 3g carbohydrates and 3g fat.
