Bumper plates are special weight plates that are mainly used in weightlifting and strength training. Unlike conventional weight plates, they are made of dense rubber or hard plastic and are designed to cause minimal damage when dropped on the floor. The main purpose of bumper plates is to improve the safety and longevity of weight exercises, especially in exercises such as the clean and jerk in weightlifting, where the weight is often dropped from an elevated height.

Features and benefits of bumper plates:

Impact absorption: bumper plates are designed to absorb and cushion the impact on the ground when the weight is dropped. The rubberized or plastic-coated material helps to protect the floor and reduce damage or noise.

Safety: The use of bumper plates reduces the risk of injury. If the weight falls from a great height, the elasticity of the material reduces the likelihood of injury or damage to the equipment.

Dumbbell bar protection: Bumper Plates also serve as protection for the dumbbell bar. The rubberized material helps to protect the bar from damage caused by impact.

Weight identification: Bumper plates are usually available in different colors, with each color representing a specific weight. This makes it easier to quickly identify the amount of weight used.

Tunturi's weight plates Bumper Plates 51mm are specially made for weight lifting, versatile and very robust thanks to their rubber coating.

The high-quality Bumper Plates weight plates are made of stainless steel on the inside and covered with hard-wearing solid rubber. The rubber coating is much thicker than on conventional weight plates with a rubber coating, which makes the weight plates extremely robust and allows them to withstand even a fall from a height without any problems.
